YOUNGSTOWN, O., March 5.—James DeJute Jr., 11-year-old son of a Niles contractor, kidnapped from near his home Wednesday morning, was returned unharmed today after officers had found him in a secret tunnel at an alleged gambling resort near Youngstown. Two men who police said they thought were the kidnapers were captured by the posse of six officers.

The men were booked at the county jail in Warren as John DeMarco, 30, and Dowell Hargrave, 27, both of Youngstown. The men were seized and taken to the Trumbull county jail at Warren. Police said they admitted the kidnapping and led them directly to the place where the boy was found.

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 5.—The Lindbergh baby, stolen from its crib Tuesday night, was still missing today and the kidnapers had not yet broken their ominous silence.

Officials of 10 states gathered in Trenton, with a representative of the government, assigned by President Hoover himself, to arrange details of a concerted campaign to restore the baby to his famous flying parents.

In Hartford, Conn., Henry (Red) Johnson, a suitor of Betty Gow, the missing baby's nurse, was held for questioning.

New Jersey state police who had examined Miss Gow at length and exonerated her of any connection with the kidnapping, announced they were not interested in Johnson.

The New York city police, however, searched a rooming house which had been Johnson's home and where his brother still lives.

TAKE LADDER TO MEETING

Instrument Used by Kidnapers Inspected at Trenton Conference.

By The Associated Press
TRENTON, N. J., March 5.—The ladder used by the kidnapers who stole the Lindbergh baby last Tuesday night was brought to the state house today for inspection by the assembled law enforcement officers of 10 states called into conference by Governor Moore of New Jersey.

The meeting of the men whom Gov. Moore called "the best minds of the police and law enforcement circles of the country" was held in the strictest privacy.

It was learned, however, that the ladder, a roughly constructed three-plank affair, was taken into the conference chamber, with various other exhibits.

Gov. Moore made a brief address to the officials from the largest office in the country as far west as Chicago, and this was made public. The discussion which followed, intended to effect closer cooperation of all enforcement agencies, remained, at least for the time being, secret.

The schedule of the conference called for luncheon here as soon as the meeting was over and then adjournment to the Lindbergh estate outside of Hopewell.

COLDER WITH SNOW! WEEK-END FORECAST

Real March Lion Weather Promised by State Weather Bureau.

Real March lion weather that may threaten budding fruit trees is forecast for the week-end. Meteorologists who are planning trips will have cold, slushy traveling if the prediction of the state weather bureau comes true.

Sunday will be mostly cloudy and much colder, with snow flurries, the forecast states. A cold wave will strike tonight with rain changing to snow.

Several persons were injured slightly in a hail, rain and windstorm at San Antonio, Tex., last night, an Associated Press dispatch states. The collapse of a wrestling arena tent over a crowd of 3,500 resulted in a near panic.

The mercury touched zero in western Nebraska. Snow whipped by a strong wind fell over a wide area. Highway, rail and air travel was curtailed.

Farmers said the weather would benefit their crops. The high temperature yesterday was 36, falling to 27, with a light snow.

While the report of Lindbergh's hop-off seemed mistaken, at least the Lindberghs were still in the game.

KITTY FREW

by JANE ABBOTT

CHAPTER FOUR
HONEYMOON INVADERS

Kitty turned toward him as he came back. "What do you mind missing that dinner tonight?"

His mother had sent Gar's regrets because of the "circumstances." That meant because Gar had brought her home.

"Not a bit, Kitt. It'll be stupid."

And Gar was to play about for a little while; he had consented easily to the suggestion. But she shut her mind on that, quickly. Not now—now would she think of Carol.

"We'll go to the Hoffman's for dinner, Kitt. When I tell Burkett, the steward there, that we're celebrating our marriage he'll set up properly. Our honeymoon isn't over, sweet."

To do full honor to the occasion of their celebration Kitty put on her wedding dress.

The simplicity of its lines became her; its ivory texture heightened her fresh coloring.

They took a taxi to the hotel. For Kitty the summer dusk strung through with beads of light spelled enchantment; the wide door of the hotel drew them into an Aladdin's palace.

"I'm married, Burkett," Gar told the steward. "We're celebrating—the best in the house." And the steward, Burkett, bowed gravely.

For Kitty's magic lay over the room, in the soft music from an orchestra hall hidden behind a splashing fountain, over which played a changing flood of colored light, in the hum of voices.

They dined over their dinner, talking, sometimes simply gazing deeply, happily into one another's eyes.

"Kitt, it's not such a bad idea of mothers that I play around for a little while. I'll have the roadster gone over tomorrow. We'll go out to the country club. I've got to start you at golf. I tell you we're not going to get like most married people, just fussing about the milkman and the butcher and all that sort of thing. That's what takes the edge off from romance."

Kitty, 20, a little intoxicated with the color and lights about her, knew that nothing, nothing ever was going to take the edge from their romance.

"But it'll be fun with us, Gar, talking about the milkman and the butcher."

"Dad'll fix my allowance," Gar pursued with easy confidence. "Mother'll talk him into it."

"Gar, when will we see your father?"

"Best time to catch him home is at breakfast, but you have to get around by 8 o'clock to do that."

"Let's have breakfast with him tomorrow, Gar," Kitty was eager.

The room had emptied of its dinner guests. Kitty and Gar had the dancing space almost entirely to themselves. "I like it—like this," Kitty whispered into Gar's ear, bent close to her cheek. "It's as if everything were just for us."

But presently four young people came in and Gar, seeing them, exclaimed loudly: "There's Marge and Red Harding. That's Diana Close with her, Kitt, and Tubby Wilkins." He was across the room on the instant, shaking hands with the newcomers. Kitty saw the girl who he had called Diana Close kiss Gar.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Madge's Joy at Dicky's Charming Apology Is Interrupted.

I LAUGHED until tears stood in my eyes at the cartoon which Dicky had showed beneath my door. But there was warm gratification mingled with my amusement. I read the message beneath the grotesque picture. How often Dicky had employed his gifted pencil in sending me an absurd drawing masking an apology for some exhibition of temper on his part!

Madge Sees a Strange Scene

I knew full well why he had showed the message under my door at this particular juncture. With the conference that Lee Chow had summoned so imminent, there was no time for him to come to me with a spoken apology, because we surely would be interrupted by the summons. Yet he was unwilling to meet me before the others without first sending me some sort of apology for the absurd, jealous temper he had displayed because I had brought Baby Faith down for Hugh's inspection.

Feeling ridiculously like a school girl, I kissed the drawing before putting it away in my desk, and then I rushed through my shower and dressing, finishing with a little feeling of triumph over time, just before Lillian knocked at my door. There was a puzzled look of excitement upon her face, and I knew that it would have been covered by her usual indifferent mask if she were talking to any one upon whom she wished to impress a total lack of interest in the proceedings of the day.

"I've told Marion to come down to that little study off the library in five minutes," she said. "That's where Lee Chow wants us. I've talked to her, and we understand each other about the box. But, my word, Madge, that apient Chink downstairs sure is pling thriller upon thriller! I won't spoil it beforehand, however. Come down and see for yourself what's doing."

I hurried with her down the stairs, infected by her patent excitement, and stopped just inside the door of the small study off the library, feeling as if my eyeballs were distending with amazed curiosity.

The Unusual Preparations

Gathered around a small table, upon which rested the lock box that I recognized as Marion's, were my father, Dicky, Harry Underwood and Hugh Grantland. But they were not looking at the box. My eyes and Lillian's followed their tense, watching eyes to the figure of Lee Chow standing near another table, upon which lay a sterilizing tray holding within it two or three gleaming implements of a surgeon's profession.

The hands of the Chinese were outstretched to Katherine, who stood so near the door leading to the library that she could hear the lightest sound from within it, and by stepping back a pace could see into the room.

Remembering what she had told me of her patient's deafness, I recalled the reason for choosing this small and inconvenient room for the conference. They needed the services of a nurse—why, I had no idea—and they did not wish to bring a stranger into the domain.

Harding Cops Opening Tourney Clash from Grandview

PRESIDENTS SCORE EASY 42-13 VICTORY

Bohyermen Will Tackle Columbus West Tonight in Second Conflict at Delaware.

By BOB KIRKPATRICK
Sports Editor, The Star

The future status of the North Central Ohio Scholastic League, of which Harding High school is a part, is just about as certain today as who killed Cock Robin. Since Bucyrus recently announced its decision to withdraw from the circuit as long as "Rube" Murphy is coach of Mansfield athletic teams, rumors concerning the league have been flying faster than machine gun slugs in a Chicago gang war. If some one would be kind enough to figure out a solution to the whole controversy, the governing board of the circuit would probably give him a rising vote of thanks. Ironing out the difficulties is likely to provide the ruling nucleus some quite embarrassing moments when they convene on March 15.

There is only one thing certain about the whole affair right now. Bucyrus is out and is going to stay out as long as Murphy is the guiding hand at Mansfield. Murphy is still very much "in" at Mansfield and there's that. Any one that doesn't like it can get out of the league, which is precisely what Bucyrus intends to do—get out and stay out.

As matters stand right now, there is very little that can be done except hang around and see the fireworks. And there is likely to be a rather dazzling display before the row is brought to a conclusion satisfactory or otherwise. Several Harding High schools Red and Black cage quarter romped higher and won last night on the hard-wood court of Edwards gym in Delaware in the first game of the central district A tournament, administered at first class beating to Grandview High school of Columbus. The first score was 42-13. The Presidents will tackle to Delaware again tonight for the second class of the tourney meeting Columbus West at 8:45 p. m. Wednesday. Columbus South tonight in a close battle, winning by a single point 16-15.

The Harding-Grandview game would rightly be classed as "no contest." The Presidents did not play anything like the brand of basketball which carried them through the N. C. O. league campaign to the runner up position in the final standings. Grandview was simply not in the same class with the Bohyermen combine and as a result had no chance to come as much as close to scoring a victory. The losers presented no defense to test the attack of the Red and Black and the Harding boys were content to score their baskets in a sort of hit and run style.

Harding takes more than about two minutes of the first period to figure out the contest was going to be. The Presidents started their scoring exploits immediately after the starting whistle and took a lead that was never as much as the Grandview boys. Harding's towering pivot man, led the Harding attack in the first half dropping in four field goals for a total of eight points in the first two periods. The score at the end of the first period was 24 for Harding.

The second period was merely a repetition of the first. Harding continued almost at will the Grandview team gaining possession of the ball for only a very small share of the playing time. Bohyermen tossed his second string lineup into the fray with a minute of the first half left for play and then left them in through the third period and the early part of the fourth.

Maury Whittemore, Grandview's star, went on a scoring spree early in the third period, registering three buckets in rapid succession as the Presidents continued the first half massacre. The score at the end of the third period was 33-8 before they were reprieved by the starting five early in the final frame.

Grandview accounted for more schools. It doesn't take anything more to attract a good crowd to see them battle, whether it be in football, basketball or horsehoes.

The situation is all very befuddling. Bucyrus won't have anything to do with Murphy. Murphy doesn't want two teams or more in the league. The schedule for next season are already made up. Officials are in a sweat trying to evolve a solution to the problem. Harding is going to keep right on playing Bucyrus, league or no league, and I'm going to keep right on hoping the day will come when the Presidents can come for the recent series of beatings which the Redmen have been handing the Presidents on the football field.

Hang around boys. The fireworks are about to get started.

PURDUE, WILDCATS IN BIG TEN TITLE FRAY

Triumph for Boilermakers Will Virtually Cinch Court Championship.

By The Associated Press
CHICAGO, March 5.—Purdue Boilermakers, who last fall stole an undisputed Big Ten football title from Northwestern, comes back tonight to trade the Wildcat's of the 1932 basketball championship.

A triumph for Purdue tonight will virtually assure the golden oldie from Lafayette the lead in the championship, while Northwestern must win to earn a share of the title. Northwestern's never at all with clean victories and one of a close two critical tonight with nine triumphs and two defeats, one of the latter administered by the Boilermakers two weeks ago. It will be the Wildcat's final game of the season.

Purdue leading the league with nine victories and one defeat will play one more game after tonight against Chicago.

If Purdue wins tonight, the title is virtually certain to go back to Lafayette.

Scouts of Harding Area To Hold Roundup Here

Representative of the National Council, Boy Scouts of America, Will Be Here for Event To Be Held Thursday Night.

The appearance of a representative of the National Council of the Boy Scouts of America, the conferring of decorations on mothers of Scouts by their sons, the awarding of badges to Scouts, and a short program by the Harding High school band, will be high lights at the roundup to be staged by Boy Scouts of Harding Area at The Star auditorium next Thursday night, according to an announcement made today by Scout Executive Arthur S. Brooks. The affair, it is expected, will be attended by more than 1,000 including Scouts and their friends. No admission will be charged, it was announced by the Scout executive, and an invitation has been extended to the general public.

National Worker to Be Here
The program is scheduled to start at 8 p. m. and the investiture ceremonies will be conducted by

H. W. Haun, a representative of the National Council of Boy Scouts of America. Immediately preceding the entry of the troops of the area, a short program will be given by the Harding High school band. Troops will bring their national and troop flags and during the flag ceremony, all of the flags will be massed in front of the stage. The award of badges and advanced Scout rank will be made by the area court of honor of which Alfred Donihien is chairman and special delegates will be presented to all first class and second Scouts who have completed certain requirements during the roundup. An interesting ceremony will be the decoration of mothers by their sons. Each Scout presented with a badge, will pin a miniature of the badge upon his mother who under the official regulations, is permitted to wear it.

To Get Streamers
Another feature of the program will be the presentation of streamers to the troops which during the roundup have earned one or more of the four objectives which were given by the scout executive as increased membership, the elevation of tenderfoot Scouts to first class, the elevation of second class Scouts to first class and the earning of two merit badges by each second and first class Scout. The streamers will be placed on the troop flag.

The Harding area includes Wyandot, Crawford, Morrow and Marion counties, and it is expected that troops from each of these counties will be present at the meeting.

PHOTOS SHOW RESEMBLANCE TO SON

The son of Charles A. Lindbergh, seized by kidnapers, is said to bear a remarkable resemblance to his father, who is shown here in infancy, in boyhood and as he appeared when an air mail pilot.

LINDBERGH APPEAL

Mrs. Lindbergh and I desire to make a personal contact with the kidnapers of our child.

Our only interest is in his immediate and safe return and we feel certain that the kidnapers will realize that this interest is strong enough to justify them in having complete confidence and trust in any promises that we may make in connection with his return.

We urge those who have the child to select any representative that they desire to meet a representative of ours who will be suitable to them at any time and at any place that they may designate.

If this is accepted, we promise that we will keep whatever arrangements that may be made by their representative and ours strictly confidential, and we further pledge ourselves that we will not try to injure in any way those connected with the return of the child.

Marion W.C.T.U. Groups Hold All-Day Meeting

Talks by two Marion ministers and Miss Harriet B. Stuart of Bucyrus, director of education in the state prohibition department, featured the group institute held by Anna Gordon, Lillian Stevens, Florence Richards and Frances Willard united yesterday at the First United Brethren church. A covered dish dinner was served at the noon hour with a number of ministers, their wives and friends as guests.

Courage Needed
The necessity of having courage in carrying on the work of prohibition was pointed out by Dr. C. E. Turley, pastor of Epworth M. E. church, in his talk on "Courage in Our Work." He read excerpts from several leaflets in regard to prohibition and illustrated his talk with a number of personal experiences. "It is for organizations like the W. C. T. U. and the church to take a courageous stand for the right in the proposition," he said, and urged the members to feel that they are not on a losing side.

The importance of youth, the importance of the training of youth and the importance of having well defined goals were three things stressed by Rev. H. H. Maxwell, pastor of Grace Evangelical church, in his address, "Youth and Sobriety." "The saloon is not being asked for by young folks today," he stated, "they are asking for the right to live and give something." That sympathy is needed by the youth was pointed out by the speaker, as it is a period of combating forces, moral and physical.

The work being done along educational lines by workers in the educational division of the state prohibition department was discussed by Miss Stuart in a short talk. Her work, she stated, was primarily in the schools where her aim is to give concrete examples of what efficiency means in the lives of the children. She presented figures giving the cost of financing the department in comparison with the proceeds netted in fines. There are 20 active inspectors in the department and two women workers, she stated. In an informal talk Mrs. Mary O. Jennings, president of the Marion County W. C. T. U., urged the women who have not registered to do so and asked all to vote at both the primary and November elections.

Salute Flags
The program included singing by the assembly and vocal numbers by Rev. G. G. Canfield, pastor of the First Church of the Brethren, and Mrs. A. L. Wood. The salute to the American, Christian and W. C. T. U. flags were in charge of T. O. Showers, Mrs. Albert Midland and Mrs. S. G. Haldeman. A special prayer service was conducted by Mrs. H. E. Hill at the close of the morning session. The afternoon session closed with talks on their trip to Washington by Miss Helen Lavery of this city and Charles Peak of Waldo, winners of the quiz contest sponsored by the Anti-Saloon league. The young people were presented $5 gold pieces by Mrs. Jennings as a gift from the W. C. T. U.

Music for the program was in charge of Mrs. A. L. Wood and Mrs. Zoia Davis, county institute director, presided.
